TKE accused of violating hazing policy

by Kevin Colligan, Nancy Gannon and Maureen McGowan

Charges that TKE National Fraternity violated MSC's hazing policy are being investigated by the Greek Council under the direction of the SGA attorney general. A hearing on the matter will be held on October 13 by the Greek Council Judicial Court.

According to Campus Police, the charges are also being investigated to determine if any criminal offenses took place.

TKE officials denied the charges.

The investigations were prompted by charges levied in an anonymous letter that TKE engaged in hazing during its last pledging cycle. Photographs allegedly supporting the charge accompanied the letter.

"What we did was done privately on a retreat. It was not hazing," said TKE president Patrick Algieri.

Edward Martin, Dean of Student Affairs, said the pictures will most likely be presented to the Judicial Court.

David Najarian, the vice president of TKE at the time the photographs were allegedly taken, said TKE believes that the photos were stolen from a fraternity photo album.

The letter stated that the pictures were from the last spring. Algieri countered the allegation, stating the photographs were taken at a brotherhood retreat that took place in a Glen Ridge home in the spring of 1991.

Dean Martin said, "Our concern is when the activity took

Campus Police officer serves as Reid's chauffeur

by Cliff Annicelli

MSC President Irvin Reid utilizes a campus security officer as his personal chauffeur and messenger despite budget crunches and personnel cutbacks.

Senior Security Officer Jim Higgins, 43, of the campus police regularly serves as a personal driver for President Reid when he is required to go off-campus for "official duties". Higgins also personally delivers the agenda of the monthly board of trustees meeting to each individual member of the board at their homes, a drive that sometimes takes up to six hours and includes a trip to Trenton.

Higgins is paid to perform these duties, including overtime when necessary.

"It's been set up like this long before I came here," Higgins said, "The word comes down from the president and I go. I'm just following orders. I'm the low man on the totem pole."

According to the Director of Campus Police and Security, Phillip Calitre, Reid's use of a security officer in a capacity outside of an officer's official "mission" is nothing new.

"These are duties inherited through other presidents. When the president has to take care of official business, we provide a security officer to drive him," Calitre said.

Despite the shrinking of the campus police force from 28 down to 23 officers, Calitre doesn't feel that the occasional loss of one officer weakens campus safety as a whole.

Hazing policies of NJ state, MSC and TKE

by Mlle Cappadona

Total nudity at any time, paddle swats and pledges awakened time and again during the night are just a few of the examples of hazing according to MSC hazing guidelines.

New Jersey state law defines hazing as follows:

A) A person is guilty of hazing, a disorderly persons offense, if, in connection with initiation of applicants to or members of a student or fraternal organization, he knowingly or recklessly organizes, promotes, facilitates or engages in any conduct, other than competitive athletic events, which places or may place another person in danger of bodily injury.

B) A person is guilty of aggravated hazing, a crime of the fourth degree, if he commits an act prohibited in subsection (A) which results in serious bodily injury to another person.

MSC has its own hazing guidelines set up. The college defines hazing as any action taken or situation created intentionally, to create:

- a) physical or psychological discomfort
- b) embarrassment
- c) harassment
- d) paddling in any form

INTERNATIONAL

In International news, according to the Wall Street Journal, South Africa is starting to take steps toward democracy. They freed scores of prisoners while under orders given to them by the African National Congress. Perhaps overlooked in the masses, among the free were three ANC members accused of killing whites and an already convicted Neo-Nazi found guilty of slaying a black man.

Gorbachev refused to appear in Russia's Constitutional Court. He felt the proceedings would exploit him since the Court is determining the fate of the Communist Party, the same party he once headed.

Over the weekend in Tajikistan, hundreds were killed as Central Asia moved closer to a civil war. These actions prompted Russian troops to reinforce themselves with more fleets of troops being stationed within the country.

And in Germany, cancellations of the 50th Anniversary Celebrations for the first firing of Hitler's V-2 rocket were felt by the entire country. This action came under the pressure and strong intervention in Germany and from Great Britain.

NATIONAL

In National news, H. Ross Perot spoke out in the The New York Times Business section about how he would handle economics. Although never breaking down the question with an answer consisting of any numbers, Perot's opinion is, "Reduce spending and generate more revenues..It's that simple." He is in favor of raising the tax bracket to 33 percent from the already 31 percent and reducing deductions off tax pamphlets to tax persons owning very expensive items such as houses, cars or property. A major tax adjustment, he proposes, is the 50 cent a gallon tax on gasoline, while fully eliminate the deduction an employer accepts providing fully paid insurance. He also states that by cutting back 10 percent on all discretionary budget items will save the country 23 billion dollars. Though he fails to list what those items would be.

In other National news, where would you guess the highest amount of women's labor percentage would be? Well, according to the Wall Street Journal, Minnesota ranked very high with a percentage of 67 percent and Alaska coming in second with 65 percent. Alabama and Louisiana finished lowest with only a little over half, 52 percent.

LOCAL

In Regional News, tropical storm Danielle coupled with a strong pressure system caused strong northeast winds which ravaged the Mid-Atlantic coastline. Winds up to 35 MPH and gusts up to 45 MPH or more smashed the churning ocean over sea walls and beaches. On Fire Island, 40 feet of beach was lost the first night of the storm.

Police in New York City stormed City Hall despite the fact that their duty is to stop such an occurrence. Off duty police were rallying to protest a proposed Civilian Complaint Review Board. Several thousand police approached City Hall without being halted by on duty police officers.

Proposals by the N.J. Department of Environmental Protection and Energy to support two separate bills proposed by Democratic Senator, Bill Bradley, were offered before a Senate subcommittee. The bills propose to add parts of the Delaware and Great Egg Harbor rivers to our National Wild and Scenic Life system.

Temperatures were about 2.5 degrees below normal this summer in Newark. The coldest summer since 1965.

Crews cleared trees along Rt. 20 East in order to make way for a twenty foot concrete noise barrier. The 8.4 million dollar project is proposed to be 3,000 feet long and should be done by August of 1994.

Olympic swimmer speaks to youths in Panzer

by Michael Frasco

Olympic swimmer Ron Kamaugh was the guest speaker at the Newark Boys and Girls Club/Paterson YMCA Swimming Clinic at MSC's Panzer Swimming Pool on Tuesday.

Kamaugh was on hand to share his experiences from the 1992 Barcelona Olympic Games and to promote the importance of inner city swimming to 40 youngsters from both the Newark and Paterson Clubs.

The 26-year old from Maplewood, N.J. was a gold medalist at the 1991 Pan-American games and the number one qualifier at the 1992 Olympic trials in the 200 Individual Medley.

While in Barcelona, Kamaugh's father suffered a heart attack and died during the opening ceremonies. He said, "I was prepared to have the swim of my life and I experienced a very devastating tragedy."

Despite his loss, Kamaugh did compete in the 200 Individual Medley, but finished sixth. "Many people asked me, did it ever cross my mind to not swim and forfeit and go home? The answer is no, it never crossed my mind. I know deep in my heart that my father would've wanted me to compete no matter what happens to me."

Although he said he was disappointed by his sixth-place finish, Kamaugh realized a much more important lesson as a result of his tragic experience, as well as the impact it had on the world. "This made me more sensitive to the basic human needs, seeing how everyone was reaching out and trying to help me and how many people were touched by what had happened to me," he said.

On Tuesday, Kamaugh reached out to give the kids some guidance and words of encouragement. He said, "I enjoyed being here today and sharing with the kids how I was able to pursue my dreams over the years."

The Olympian also told the kids that setbacks such as the one he suffered with his father's death, make the individual more determined.

Concerning his own situation, Kamaugh noted that part of what he learned from his ordeal he planned to apply in other areas of his life, such as pursuing a career as a physician. He is currently attending medical school in Newark.

His plans for the immediate future are to concentrate on his education, and he does plan on competing in the 1996 Olympics, to be held in Atlanta, Georgia. He said, "I plan on making the biggest comebacks this country has ever seen. A lot of people think I'm finished, I'm going to medical school and it's all over...in 1996 I will be back."

Kamaugh will be 30 when the Atlanta Olympics take place, but he doesn't consider that to be any factor. He said, "I'll be 30, so I'll get the older generation pumped up!"

The reason that he wants to give it another shot, is his not being satisfied with his performance. However, Kamaugh, despite all the adversity, did not overlook the thrill of competing in front of the world. He said, "On the whole, swimming in the Olympics, there's nothing like it. There's a lot of pride and it's an honor to represent your country. I wanted to represent what America stands for in that we're not quitters."

Biology equipment still missing

by Anthony Floreno

An animal cage washing machine was stolen approximately two weeks ago from outside of Finley Hall said Biology department chairperson Dr. Bonnie Lustigman.

The machine was used to wash the rat cages which were in the old animal rooms and it was to be placed in the new animal facilities room, said Lustigman.

The machine was believed to have been stolen during all the recent construction on campus. "The thieves could have driven a truck onto campus and nobody would think differently because of all the construction trucks," said Lustigman, "they could have come and gone without being noticed."

Lustigman added, "The machine is huge, it would take a crane to move it. We are very disappointed."

Campus Police were notified of the theft, but have had no leads as of yet.

Parking decal fee included in tuition bill

by Pam Colon

There was an addition to the tuition bills for the 1992 Fall semester which has caused mixed reaction from students.

According to MSC Business Ms. Vil Maristela, the business office decided it might be easier for them as well as the students if the $25 parking fee be automatically added in on the tuition bills, considering that the parking decal application form is mailed with the bill. Students were not notified of this new addition.

"The form indicates that the fee was added on. If the students don't read what's on the bill then we are not responsible," Maristela said.

Some students who have cars and needed a decal felt it was easier with the fee added on, but some students did not.

Senior Celeste Narciso said, "I don't understand why a notice wasn't sent out. I have been here for four years, every year I get my bill, I look at the total and pay the price, I figure the school knows what it's doing. The bill looked as it always did so why would I look twice? The funny part is, I don't even have a driver's license, never mind a car,"

Maristela said, "We are giving students the benefit of the doubt and if they come down to the business office they will be reimbursed," Maristela said.

According to Maristela, students are driving to campus but not filing for a decal. Campus police went on a vehicle check and issued approximately $3000.00 in tickets to vehicles without decals. "I don't understand why students would rather pay $10.00 every time they park rather than pay a one time $25.00 parking fee," Maristela said.

Maristela wants the students to understand that they are not charging this fee "for the heck of it," there is a purpose. It helps pay for the three new shuttle buses as well as parking facilities for the students and faculty.

"Instead of beating the system, why don't the students work with us to provide a better service for everyone?" Maristela said.

According to the business office, approximately 2,000 students say they are not driving to campus and do not need a parking decal. Graduate students and part-time students are included in this amount, and insist that they are not driving to campus.

"Some of the students live in Hazlet and other distant locations, is there a shuttle bus that we are unaware of that comes from there to here? How are these students getting to class?" Maristela said.

Many students that paid the fee and have not received their decal must go to the business office and fill out an application. According to the business office, "If a student did not receive a decal it is due to the fact that they did not fill out the form," Maristela said.

REID, from page 1

"It depends on how you look at it, but we don't feel that campus security is jeopardized. Many times Officer Higgins isn't on duty when he's called to drive somewhere," Calitre said.

Reid could not be reached for comment.

Assistant to the President, Lise Greene, further defended the practice by stating that the college saves money by having a security officer perform these tasks, as well as his own, instead of hiring an official driver or having Reid do his own driving.

"For him (Reid) to spend three or four hours on the road would be a terrible waste of time. If we have to have someone drive President Reid, it's better to have an officer do it than waste the president's time," Greene said.

Greene also added that it is necessary for Officer Higgins to hand-deliver the copies of the board of trustee's agenda because due to their bulk, they "cannot be mailed" and home delivery is the "most efficient way to get the materials to our board members."

place, for what reasons, and what changes in member development have taken place since then."

"None of this happens anymore. We must comply with our National's regulations," Algieri said, "Some of our more recent retreats have been held on campus in Partridge Hall." He added that the fraternity is under a new executive board.

Algieri said that the men pictured were not pledges, but brothers. "It could be a guy that's been in for two years," he said, "It was a brotherhood bonding activity, we were playing games."

Najarian concurred, "They were all brothers. The event took place to release tension. It boosts everyone's morale. After the activity, I can still turn around and say, 'I love you, you're my brother.'"

According to New Jersey State law, MSC hazing statutes and the constitution of TKE, however, activities defined as hazing (see hazing guidelines) are prohibited for fraternity members as well as pledges.

MSC president Irvin Reid said, "We are keeping an open mind. We are giving the students the benefit of the doubt, but will uphold the policies of MSC."

Reid said the allegations are being examined on three levels:

the Administration is conducting an investigation to determine whether there has been a violation of campus policy; the SGA, according to president Gouri Sadhwani, is conducting an investigation and TKE National will conduct an investigation.

James Harris, Dean of Student Activities, said, "Clearly, to anyone who doesn't belong, some of the activities depicted are reasons for grave concern about the practices that continue within the organizations." He added, "Since hazing is illegal, we have no intentions of condoning or tolerating such behavior at this college."

TKE member Chris Pontrelli, who said he is included among the photographs of blindfolded individuals, said he did not consider activities in which he engaged to be hazing. "I was not forced to do anything, I definitely did not eat anything foul, and I was not scared. I had total trust. I didn't regret it at all, but there are more effective ways, [to promote brotherly trust]" he said.

Pontrelli currently holds the position of "Hypophetes" in the MSC chapter of TKE and is in charge of all rituals, retreats and academics.

Algieri said the activities portrayed in the photographs were the result of brothers losing bets based on competitions that may have ranged from "board games to athletic events." "The blindfolds," according to Algieri, "are for the whole trust thing. We did not force them to do anything." He also said the writing of letters and phrases on individuals photographed was, "just a goof - just a fake tattoo. It could be part of the competition. You have to have something tattooed on your body with a marker for the night."

Rich Adams, President of Greek Council, commented on the allegations. "Hazing is a problem that must be stopped. But it's been around for as long as fraternities and sororities have existed. Until people are seriously punished by the system for it, it's not going to stop," he said.

SGA president Gouri Sadhwani said, "[The fraternity] will be judged by their peers. They can empathize with them, or hold them up to certain standards."

TKE has issued a memo to all Greek organizations, explaining their situation and asking for support against what they called, "malicious accusations."

Also, hazing with or without the consent of a student, is prohibited by the college, and a violation of that prohibition renders both the person inflicting the hazing and the person submitting to the hazing, subject to discipline.

Aside from the state law and campus guidelines, many fraternities have their own rules and guidelines against hazing. Tau Kappa Epsilon's (TKE) own hazing guidelines state:

Tau Kappa Epsilon believes that chapters, in planning their new member education programs, should use the findings of scientific research in training and discipline methods. The applicable findings should be publicized in a new member policy by each chapter.

All forms of hazing are forbidden by the Fraternity. Hazing is defined as any action taken or situation created, intentionally, on or off college or fraternity premises, to produce mental or physical discomfort, embarrassment, ridicule, or possibly cause mental or physical harm or injury.

State board votes to change university requirements

by Anthony Floreno

The New Jersey Board of Higher Education met and adopted new regulations governing the criteria for naming a university on Friday, September 25, by a 7-5 vote.

The new criteria includes a larger focus on teaching, which is divided into traditional research teaching and major focus teaching. In traditional research teaching, "The university provides a wide range of undergraduate studies and graduate studies in two or more professional fields, such as medicine, law, public administration, engineering, or education and operative programs of instruction leading to the doctorate or comparable terminal degrees in two or more areas."

The amendment added to the ordinance is where MSC is concerned. It is based on major focus teaching and reads, "A university whose major focus is on teaching provides a wide range of undergraduate programs and provides graduate programs in at least three academic disciplines. A teaching university has a minimum of 2500 full-time equivalent (FTE) students. At least 20% of the university's total student body (headcount) are enrolled in graduate degree programs." The ordinance also states that "a significant number of the faculty in each program are associated with the institution full-time." Because MSC fulfills these basic criteria it is eligible to apply, with the approval of its governing boards, to the New Jersey Board of Higher Education for university status.

Dr. Jesse Rosenblum, Vice-President of Institutional Advancement, said, "The College Senate clearly endorses the notion of university status and is working towards that goal."

After MSC applies, its petition is reviewed by an external consultant employed by the Department of Higher Education. The chancellor recommends approval to the Board based on the consultant's report.

Rosenblum added, "(MSC) stands the best chance of any institution in New Jersey of becoming a university, if and when we submit our application."

Professor's art work destroyed

by Renee McDonnell

Seventeen paintings by Prof. Leon de Leeuw were found slashed and destroyed in studios, throughout Calcia Hall, on Monday Sept. 21.

According to de Leeuw, the paintings had an estimated gallery value of $32,000. He is currently in the process of bringing the paintings home and will no longer store his works in the building.

de Leeuw stated that there has never been such a problem in his 30 years at MSC. Campus Police are currently investigating the situation.

"We are all very upset about the incident. Vandalism is so much more malicious than common theft because there is no monetary gain for anyone," said A.B. Weinschenker, chairperson of the fine arts department.

Several art students stated that they have been complaining for five years for de Leeuw to remove his paintings from the small, over crowded classrooms.

Both de Leeuw and Weinschenker deny the accusation and state the paintings were stored in the classrooms as demonstration models.

Weinschenker did state that the studios are small and it is not common practice for teachers to store their work there.

de Leeuw said that his initial reaction was, "Damn!" and also stated, "I am bothered by the fact that some sick individual is walking around the campus."

de Leeuw and Weinschenker did not know of any possible suspects.

de Leeuw, who hopes to continue painting, stated that he feels the construction occurring in the building has lessened the security.

Clinton heckled by MSC students

"Whitehouse not a whorehouse"

Several MSC students made presidential hopeful Bill Clinton's trip to New Jersey last week mighty uncomfortable when they broke out into chants of "Whitehouse not a whorehouse" and "Draft dodger tell the truth."

The students belong to a loosely-knit organization calling themselves MSC Republicans. They caught the democrats off guard during Clinton's speech at Merck pharmaceuticals which was supposed to be delivered to Merck employees and Clinton volunteers only.

Jeffrey Ceterko, a member of the organization, said the MSC republicans obtained access to the closed speech due to the lack of Merck's organization. Passes for volunteers were haphazardly handed out in the parking lots, according to Ceterko, and he and his fellow republicans received passes from a frazzled staffer who mistook them for Clinton volunteers.

Robert Antonek, president of the MSC republicans, concurred, "We said we were volunteers. We didn't say if we were Republican volunteers or Democrat volunteers."

Ceterko said the members split into three groups and waited through the speeches of various senators and Governor Jim Florio for their main target to appear. "We were scared," Ceterko said. After several pauses in Clinton's speech, Ceterko said, his group stood on their chairs and began to chant.

The other groups never joined the protests.

"We chanted for a good minute and a half before we were asked to leave," Ceterko said. He said he and his companions left peacefully when police arrived on the scene. The protestors were held for the remainder of the speech and then driven off of Merck property by police.

"The best part," said

Ceterko, "was that the cop was a republican. He said he wanted Bush back in too."

The group reassembled at the entrance of Merck and heckled the audience of the

The story was covered in The New York Times, CNN and Z-100 FM.

Comedians start a laugh riot at MSC

by Christina Tischio

On Tuesday night, MSC held a very successful comedy show. The show consisted of three very talented and widely diversified comedians.

The first up was Andy Bowers, a curly haired, Jewish joke toting woman whose sarcastic, dry manner really worked for her material. Small tits and douching highlighted her routine.

The headliner of the show, Spanish-cracking Rich Revere, displayed a more serious comedy than the others. His previous shows were on VH1. The crowd even laughed at his older routine. He also used musical elements to bring variety and energy to his routine.

Speaking of energy, Joe Rogan was a comic that you just couldn't forget. He has appeared on Comedy Cafe as well as MTV. His routine consisted of sex oriented jokes of Mike Tyson, parties, and a handbook of rules about women and reasons why you shouldn't become attached. I learned a new word - SNATCH? Instead of the regular slang words for the female body parts.

CAMPUS LIFE

Campus Construction: Is it a hassle?

by Nicole Pisano

"You're supposed to eat a bushel full of dirt in your lifetime." This is what campus construction worker Gary says to remember the next time you find yourself engulfed by a large dustball of smoke on your way to class...

The bright rays of the sun stream onto the scattered students making their way to class. A piercing steady beep can be heard in the distance along with the strained cries of a crane's motor switching gears. The beeping does not cease. The volume only increases as you move closer to the site.

Soon, metal blockades and fences appear. The yellow mechanical arm becomes visible, reaching out and clutching the ground with its razor sharp teeth.

A large foggy cloud rises from your feet and seeps up higher and higher until it reaches your head. It moves up through your nostrils and into your throat. As you gasp for a breath your lungs expand. In a vain attempt to expel the particles your lungs release with a loud sound as the debris is ejected in various directions. Welcome to MSC.

"Construction on the library started in November of 1991 and construction on the academic building started around March of 1991," said construction super Tom Kilgallen, who feels that students should not get too upset about the inconveniences. "Before, everyone a parking space in the morning. Now, I have to leave even earlier just to walk around the detours to get to class."

Freshman Donald Jimenez said, "When I first decided to come here the construction was not this bad, now I get a cloud full of dust on my way to class... also, I am having a difficult enough time finding my way around campus let alone trying to find my way around all the fences so I can get to class."

The guard rails and barriers may look unappealing but they have been put up to provide a safer environment for the students. "They are used to block off dangerous areas or to cover up holes," said Tom Kilgallen.

For others, the construction has had no effect on them. "It doesn't effect me at all, I just park in the Quarry and take the shuttle to class," said senior Michele Pisano. Sophomore Jill Helm said, "It makes the campus undesirable to prospective students, but it does not bother me."

Some students in their senior year are disappointed about the

"It takes long enough to find a parking space in the morning. Now, I have to leave even earlier just to walk around the detours to get to class."

was complaining that the facilities of the library were inadequate and now when something is being done to make an improvement, they are complaining about the hassle and the sloppy appearance that the construction has brought to campus."

Scott Spatola, a commuter, said, "It takes long enough to find

construction on campus. "It is my last year and I know the construction is going to be very beneficial to the new incoming students by the time they graduate, but for me, I am leaving this place in May and it is not too pleasant to graduate from a school whose campus looks like it has been hit by a hurricane," said Iggy Zelaya. Jen Wolle, also in her senior year, said, "The construction work really doesn't bother me, after all, we do get the benefits of the hooting remarks of the construction workers as we walk by." On a serious note, she said that it is a little inconvenient for us now but in the end it will better the school.

Students and workers have mixed reactions to the construction on campus. For some, it is just something ugly to look at while others are not phased by it. Yet there are still others that are not focusing on what is in front of them at the current time. They choose to focus on the future that the expansion will bring to this campus, which will aid in its growth towards becoming a university.

peculiar people and wiggling wonders

Coming to you bi-weekly
By Appetite Cotter

Save your soul. Don't wig out. See Suzie Herbst.

Alcohol. Booze. Say it out loud for emphasis-B-O-O-Z-E, the succulent nectar of our youth. Stand on top of College Hall naked and scream to anyone who walks by, "ALCOHOL IS THE SUCCULENT NECTAR OF MY YOUTH!! I WAS BREAST FED BY BUDWEISER!! BOOYA! 33! 33! WHAT DOES THAT HAVE TO DO WITH THE GLASS LINED TANKS OF OLD LATROBE!?! I AM THE MARSHMELLOW KING OF THE STRATOSPHERE!" People will start asking you questions.

Ever since the Rat entered the age of prohibition, the urchins that inhabit Camp Montclair have been looking for direction. They've felt violated, dismayed, confused and have existed in a general funk. Legal spots to consume moldy yeast and hop juice have become as rare as a feminist in a go-go bar. The masses are looking for a messiah, someone to wave a stiff little finger and allow them to quench their thirst within the hallowed halls of the student center. They are looking at you.

"ME!?! Don't look at me man," you say with pains of apathy, "I got nothing to do with it. Just stay away man, or I swear to God I'll hock a booger on you!" That's O.K. No really, that's cool. Just remember the pains you're going to go through this Thursday night to engage in the consumption of brew ha ha. Ah yes, now you remember... Hanging precariously out the 5th floor of Bohn, head first, the blood from your feet begins to trickle down to your brain. Clenched tightly between your hands is a nylon rope which is, in turn, fastened to a 20 pound case of the liquid of life. You try to signal to the guy holding your feet that you're losing your grip, and at that exact moment, he sneezes, losing HIS grip on you. The bones that popped out of your neck upon impact are a source of great wonderment to the paramedics, who sit and wait for backup as they sip on your beer...

Fear for yourself, certainly, but also fear for the multitudes of innocent people who will be the brunt of your fall into madness.

Let's say, just coincidentally, that your 21st birthday falls on a Thursday, and that, with equal coincidence, there's a Board of Trustees banquet roaring in the ballrooms. Hearing squeals of delight and howls of joy coming from the room, you meander over wondering how anyone could possibly be having such a grandiose time in the student center, of all places. With your nose smashed up against the glass doors, you suddenly realize what all the hubbub is about. Multitudes of cells start crashing into one another between the thin membrane that separates your skull and your scalp. A trickle of warm blood slides out of your nostril, running parallel with the stream of drool that plummets from your lips. "THEY'VE GOT ALCOHOL IN THERE!!", you scream, "THEY'RE SUCKING IT DOWN RIGHT IN FRONT OF MY EYES!!"

You run around the halls frantically yelling, "OH THE HYPOCRACY! GET ME A T I S S U E ! O H T H E HYPOCRACY!" Grabbing people by their necks, you pull at least ten students towards the Ballroom uttering "We've GOT to stop them! It's illegal, and for CHRIST sake I'M 21 and I have to drive to f-ing Lyndhurst to consume the succulent nectar of my youth!!"

Now being a messiah is not all that it's cracked up to be, (ask Jesus), but by general consensus, it is far more attractive than wiggling out on your fellowpeons or plunging to death. Suzie Herbst, SGA-messiah type person, is looking for those who have lost their mind over MSC's draconian alcohol policy. While her committee may not be able to restrain the noodles of your brain, it might be beneficial to the rest of your campus community to attend their Ad-Hoc committee meetings 1-3 every day in the SGA office. Otherwise, hey, you're over 18, and from now on, any debatchary will go on your permanent record. (Steve Garufi paid me $5 to mention his name in one of my columns. I got the dough, so here it is. There's a sucker born every second...).

The pain, the terror, the Holocaust a survivor shares her past

by Gall Schansinger

An ordinary citizen, one might think. She is a survivor, a victim, a symbol of the perpetual violence that occurred in Germany between 1938-1941- The Holocaust. It unlocks memories of terror, a child completely robbed of innocence; her crime-being Jewish.

The Germans looted their house and destroyed her father's hardware store. Their possessions were thrown out of their windows. Her father was arrested and taken to a concentration camp. He died there.

In 1944, Susan's mother and sister were deported to Auschwitz. They were transported in a cattle car. They had to stand. Susan's sister had typhoid fever, one of many illnesses.

Susan was taken from her family at age 7. She was sent to Great Britain on the "Kinder Transport" alone. She arrived in England not knowing any English and lived with a foster family.

Susan's mother and sister managed to survive Auschwitz and both reunited with Susan in the United States in 1947. A tattered grey dress, letters, a small knife and stockings is what is left of a memory shattered by pain.

She brought to the U.S a feeling of new hope. She leaves the past behind and looks toward the future. I'd say a survivor indeed. She shows no bitterness, just a philosophical attitude in nature.

Hitler--a symbol himself of hatred and disdain is dead but his philosophies live on. We must fight back through education and never allow a government too much power. For Hitler can always return.

It's a hard luck life...

It is heartening to know that in the midst of MSC's budgetary crisis, our esteemed college president, Irvin Reid still has the services of a chauffeur and has not been subjected to the indignity of driving himself to whatever destination he deems desirable.

Now, that is not to say that His Eminence isn't sorely burdened with the trials and tribulations of utilizing his own motor vehicle when he awakens from a restful slumber at some ungodly hour of the night with a craving for pudding pops. Sadly, Reid must stress his wrist muscles, so tired from penning presidential quality memos for the benefit of our humble campus community, to turn the ignition key and back his Olds out onto the treacherous roadways of Upper Montclair and drive himself to the A&P. This does not even take into account the chunk of Reid's annual salary increases that is scandalously being siphoned off in car insurance expenditures.

Naysayers may point out that a Campus Police force scaled down to 23 officers from a previous numerical force of 28 officers might have some crime prevention skills that could be offered our college, but we at The Montclarion are not swayed. In fact, we do not believe the comforts of the office of college president are up to the proper standards.

The list of perks befitting the commander-in-chief of an institution of higher learning such as Montclair State College is far too lengthy to list in our meager newspaper. We have, however, come up with a paltry, badly abridged list:

Everyone knows that after a trying day of scribbling over the word "college" on all MSC stationary, the president deserves to slip into a bed that is free of any type of chill. To put an end to such an abomination, a librarian from Sprague Library should be constantly on call to slip between the presidential sheets an hour or so before Reid's bedtime as to insure our president a comfortably warm resting place.

Furthermore, a construction worker on campus should be readily available for channel switching should Reid misplace his television's remote control.

And finally, an English professor (we've been kicking a few names around) should wear a pager in order to turn the pages of our president's favorite novel should our president suffer a disabling paper cut while reading.

The shame.

The truth must be found

Tau Kappa Epsilon has been accused of a very serious infraction. It is the hope of The Montclarion that the din of rumors, speculation and half-truths that typically follow such controversial matters do not interfere with the search for the truth.

If TKE is exonerated, it is our sincerest wish that the fraternity is not besmirched by the memory of baseless accusations.

If TKE is not, however, we hope that the proper procedures will ensure that an instance, such as the one alleged, never is allowed to occur.

COMMENTARY

University status will do nothing to improve MSC

The State Board of Education ruled on Friday, September 25, to lower the standards required to allow colleges to call themselves universities. Seven members of the 12 member board have brought a devastating blow to the educational system in New Jersey.

Montclair State College will now have the opportunity to apply for the right to call itself Montclair State University, but the name change will take place without much change to the institution itself. President Reid should concern himself with how the college is actually functioning rather than how it looks to his peers. Why should we call ourselves a university when we are only making cosmetic changes?

To call something other than what it is, is false advertising. Anyone who will not come to Montclair State College, but will come to Montclair State University, does not belong here. We do not want status seekers on our campus.

It is true that times are changing and outlooks are different, but lowering our standards is not the way to go. We should work to make our college better. If we implement programs that meet our current needs of higher quality standards, then and only then, can we call ourselves a university.

Will anything be different if we change our name? Not really. Elevators will still not work. Registration will still be slow and tedious. Parking will only get worse. Classes will be larger unless money is found for more staff members. We will not have a wide selection of classes to meet our needs, and the library will still be shut longer than it should be. MSC has trouble functioning as is.

What will the added burden of university status bring? Maybe President Reid will propose to raise tuition to "university status" to pay for our new burdens.

There is a technicality that is being overlooked. Two classes of universities will be established. The lower tier will be "teaching universities." MSC is included in this category. The upper tier will be "teaching and research universities," which will include universities such as Rutgers and Princeton. However, according to the Star-Ledger, the descriptive terms will probably be dropped from the formal title. This means that Montclair State Teaching University will read Montclair State University, leaving applicants confused as to whether we are a "real" university or not. This is misleading. We to believe that this body of people will have the capabilities to check each and every university to see if they are playing by the rules? We do not need another costly bureaucracy wasting our money.

The seven spineless members of the Board of Higher Education should be replaced with people who will stand up for what is right and not succumb to unjustified pressure. Lowering the standards is much like curving test grades - everyone looks good, but you really should not draw people to this institution believing MSC to be something that it is not.

You will be happy to know that the state will monitor institutions that call themselves universities to make sure that they are what they say they are. It is nice to see our tax dollars going to a good use. Are we haven't earned the grade. When we lower our standards, we are saying that it is alright to settle for less than the best. This is not the example that should be set for the students in this state. We should work towards raising standards and striving for the best, not praising mediocrity.

Bush is no advocate of Christian principles

One of the most grotesque battles this election is the Republicans' stake to "Christian Values." I am a born again Christian and by no means do the Republicans stand for the beliefs I hold. Professing hate, war and indifference to the poor has little to do with the ways of Jesus. How can constant lies and half truths, military and social Darwinism further Christian ideals?

One of the best examples of half truth is the Bush claim that Clinton raised taxes 128 times in Arkansas. Technically this is true, but under the same criteria we find Bush himself raised taxes over 400 times in his presidential term.

Our government has some strange foreign policy goals. One is to contain socialist and communist groups from attaining power regardless of how they will treat or aid their constituents. Another was to play both sides of the Iran-Iraq conflict. This due to some ill gotten notions that this would keep a balance of power, protect Israel for a time, and affect oil prices to our favor. Both of these policies were devastating to said countries and deadly to many innocent people.

We also had to go to war, because of our misguided policy towards Iran and Iraq. Trying to keep these two sides fighting, Reagan and then Bush avidly flooded weapons into these two countries, while ignoring the massive atrocities by Saddam Hussein on his own people. Hussein used gas on the Kurds and then proceeded to use it against Iran - this went unnoticed by our government. As late as June 1990, the Bush Administration was pushing for farm credits for the Iraqis, two months before the invasion of Kuwait. Shortly after that, this nation that we had been sending missiles, tanks and planes to, became Nazi Germany, and Hussein the new tyrannical Hitler who might have "The Bomb."

What changed our once friendly relationship? The threat to Bush's massive holdings in Kuwaiti oil. Hussein should never have been given the weapons he had and Bush, Thatcher, Mitterand and various Soviet and Chinese leaders should face criminal charges for sustaining this flow of arms to such a man.

Bush wanted us to defend Kuwait from Iraq in the name of "democracy." But when economically poor Haiti has its democracy overthrown, we won't even let refugees come to America. Oddly enough, Kuwait is a monarchy whose king vehemently opposes all religion except Islam. This does not follow Republican claims of Christian advocacy.

Bush's stance on abortion is obviously not founded on Christian ideals but politics. In 1980, George was pro-choice, but switched when he joined Reagan. This was due to the fact that Reagan's core constituency holds a fundamental pro-life outlook. How many babies died in Iran, Iraq, Haiti and many other nations due to his policies?

This administration also utilizes the hate and misunderstanding of different people to get votes. Vote for me because I'm not a Homoloving, welfare state, letting-rapist-niggers-out-of-jail, tree hugging, draft dodging, unpatriotic, immoral, A.C.L.U. candidate. From a Christian point of view, these beliefs have major faults.

I do not remember Jesus espousing capitalism as the economic system of God. Are we not, according to the Bible, to help one another and treat each person's good as the common good? Instead we have a system that leaves those at the bottom to the dogs. We are told of the evils behind establishing a better equilibrium in the distribution of wealth. Why is this?

What need does any one person have with millions and millions of dollars when people are starving? Contrary to Bush's belief, the poor are not poor because they are lazy. They are poor because they are left undereducated because of a system that maintains underfunded schools.

It is also clear in the Bible that God comes before country, if country even counts at all. I, because of my Christian beliefs, could never fight in a war. Bush assails Clinton for avoiding service in a war he found to be futile and unjust. If patriotism is blindly following our government, then I am unpatriotic. I try to follow the laws of God, not the petty wants and squabbles of men.

Who is George Bush, or anyone, to condemn the moral beliefs of another person. "Judge not lest ye be judged," is an appropriate excerpt from the Bible. I have too many problems with my own obedience to God and my practices of morality, to worry about attacking and criticizing other people, although I will happily debate them.

President Reagan said, "I think America's best days are ahead of it. I believe this not only because my faith in God...but because of my long and enduring faith in man." This is completely contrary to the Bible. Faith in God is contrary to faith in man. To believe men can live and get by on their own is to believe not in God but in men.

Maybe he was trying to say that God is on America's side. If he was, then I think he is wrong. God is on the side of practicing love and peace, not for one nation to be richer and to dominate technologically and militarily inferior nations.

I find Bush's policies of hating, stealing, and making war to be very far from what appears to be Christian to me. If those policies ever come to mean love, peace, patience, respect, and truth, then we can call them Christian. No man can truly represent the will of God.

Bush campaign saturated with lip-service and fraud

Neal Dougherty's Record Irreverence

Welcome back to Record Irreverence. This week I have arbitrarily chose to ostensibly write about the Tom Meyer caricature prominently featured somewhere on this page. The term "somewhere" should tip off the ever observant reader to the fact that I no longer serve in an editorial capacity in the surely sorry for the the loss editorial/opinion section of The Montclarion. Mere mention of the aforechronicled caricature also serves as a type of leveraged insurance that it will indeed appear. Those of us, I the author and you the ever patient and tolerable reader, familiar with my writings in this venue, understand that the aforesaid caricature selection is not at all necessarily relevant to the content of this soon to be elucidating essay. For the reader who is unfamiliar with my column, understand that it once was a regular feature in the esteemed Montclarion. Perhaps regular was a poor word choice, as I certainly do not want to suggest that I remotely approach normalcy, conform to the norms of society, this column conforms to any literary standard practices, or that I am a regular kind of guy. Instead let it be better said that my column appears frequently in the aforementioned and esteemed

Montclarion. Also, for the information of the first time reader, this column is usually irreverent as its by-line indicates, generally irreverently humorous, although today it will be appropriately irreverent but in a serious sort of way.

Although a myriad of musical possibilities present themselves with the aforesaid caricatures i.e. the Waitresses' I could rule the world if I could only get the parts LP, or Aerosmiths' Big Ten Inch, (who can forget the horrendous scene at this summers Republican National Convention, scads of yuppie eyed Republicans chanting "four more inches.") Fortunately, 'cause I am running out of space, this week's column needs no musical interlude. Instead, I will let the record speak for itself:

In 1990 President Bush won the Doublespeak Award presented by the National Council of Teachers of English. Following are some examples cited by the council: During the presidential campaign Bush reiterated his "no new taxes" pledge repeatedly. Remember the infamous read my lips pantomime? In factuality, during his State of the Union address President Bush claimed his 1991 budget contained "no new taxes." Nevertheless his 1991 budget did propose 21.7 billion in "receipts proposals" and "user fees".

Bush's pathetic pantomime predilection was not limited to taxation doublespeak. Once again during the 1988 campaign, "Read my lips. I will be the education president." Clearly this is consistently contradictory considering the recent collegiate tuition hikes.

While a presidential candidate, George Bush said "We...need to assure that women do not have to worry about getting their jobs back elected the White House issued this statement: President Bush vetoed the Parental and Medical Leave Bill; he "has always been opposed to the federal government mandating what every business in this country should do." Just last week Bush vetoed the latest incarnation of the Family Leave Bill claiming it was bad for business.

George Bush has a history of inconsistent rhetoric. When asking for $7.9 billion to wage an "assault on every front" of the drug war, he cent of the federal budget. Clearly allocation of such a minuscule percentage will only beget minuscule results.

A majority of voting Americans believed then presidential candidate Ronald Reagan, when he claimed he would balance the budget while simultaneously lowering taxes. An alarming majority also believed candidate George Bush when he repeated again and again "Read my lips, no new taxes." 12 years later taxes are at record levels and "read after having a child or caring for a child during a serious illness. This is what I mean when I talk about a gentler nation..." After he was implied that $7.9 billion was an enormous amount of money. Yes, $7.9 billion is an enormous amount, however it amounted to .065 per-my lips' proves to be nothing more than a pathetic attempt at lip service. Reelection will only perpetuate this fraud.

Cartoon symbolizes society's trivialization of rape

The editorial cartoon that accompanied last week's "Commuters check in, but they can't check out" was one of the most insensitive editorial decisions that The Montclarion has made this year. Hopefully in given time, the judgement of Steve Garufi, the editorial page editor, may improve, but for now we must challenge the idea that a tragic element of women's existence can be used to humorously illustrate a problem that exists for all students on this campus, male and female alike. Malicious intent may not have been directed toward victims of rape by the caption pertaining to this comic. Nevertheless, comparing a car being vandalized and a woman being raped is completely trivializing a crisis that affects many women's lives every year in this country. Moreover, it suggests that women have no more value in this society than an automobile — that an inanimate, unfeeling object might possibly share an experience as devastating as rape. This is extremely insulting, not only to survivors of rape, but to all women, everywhere!

Vandalized automobiles and rape victims have one major thing in common—they are objects. Rape is not an act of love or even sex. Rape is an act of violence. Rape is the act of a man venting his anger and wielding his power over a woman who is simply a victim. The overwhelming belief that a woman "asks for" rape is simply society perpetuating its need for a scapegoat. Rape is society's problem, not women's. Similarly, students at MSC don't ask for their cars to be vandalized when they leave them unattended to go to class. If this were the "kinder, gentler nation" that George Bush always talks about, but never provides, one would assume we could leave our cars for a few hours and return to find them in the same condition as when we left. Likewise, women should be able to walk down a street, go on a date or live in their homes without the constant fear of suffering the ultimate in physical violation. However, this is not the case. Nothing is sacred anymore, especially women's bodies. The anti-choice movement provides a good example. Men seem determined to control our bodies in more than one way.

The point the editorial cartoon was attempting to make is a valid one. Anytime one's personal space or belongings are invaded, damaged or stolen, we as human beings feel violated. The problem here is in degree of violation. If our car windows are smashed and our stereos are stolen, then it is frustrating and certainly a nuisance, but our insurance companies help us repair the damage and life goes on. When a woman is raped, the physical, mental and emotional damage is so severe that a woman's life is permanently altered. There is no "quick fix" for rape.

First, rapists are rarely considerate enough to use protection, when they attack a woman. Therefore, there is often the chance that an unwanted pregnancy will occur. Nothing could add so heavily to the devastation of rape than becoming pregnant with a rapist's child whether the rapist was an acquaintance, friend, husband, or stranger. Secondly, with the frequent occurrence of sexually transmitted diseases among consenting partners being serious enough, thing to cause it and that she could have done something to prevent it.

Fortunately, there are several types of therapy that can help women overcome these feelings and recover the power that they feel a rapist strips them of. Yet, this recovery often takes years and no one can ever erase the memory of a woman's rape from her mind.

As the level of violence escalates in our society we hear less and less about rape, but it remains a serious problem that we must address. Rape does not happen only to rich women and rape does not only happen to white women. Rape happens to all of us: mothers, daughters, sis-women who are raped are also greatly at risk. Many STD's are curable, but no cure presently exists for diseases such as AIDS and herpes. Physically, there are many possibilities for permanent injury to occur as a result of rape.

In addition, almost every woman, no matter how intellectually informed she was prior to being raped, almost always experiences the natural responses that rape is her fault, that she did someters, grandmothers, rich, poor, middle-class, Black, Hispanic, Caucasian, working women and students. Rape is a crisis, not a joke, and we should be treating it like one. Using a woman's tragedy to provide humor for the student body is not only sexist, it is distasteful and disrespectful.

Garufi, next time, please use better judgement and if you aren't going to act like a feminist, then quit claiming to be one.

President Bush must go!

The Republican administrations have brought the United States to one of its worst conditions in many years. Today, more than 35 million Americans live under the poverty line. The U.S. unemployment rate is 7.6% and will continue to go up. The deficit is around $325 billion, as a consequence of the failed Reagan economics of the 1980's. America became the biggest debtor nation in the world after being the biggest creditor. Our 1991 GNP decline was -0.4%. This was last seen in the 1930's. Interest rates are down.

Consequently millions of Americans' incomes have been affected, particularly that of the elderly. Furthermore, America has lost its competitiveness. We only invest about 14% of our GNP in research and technology. Japan invests 28%, Germany 26% and France 21%.

In regards to the environment, there is not a strong initiative to clean up our country and the earth. On the contrary, President Bush in the last Rio de Janeiro Summit was opposed to the agreements that would lead to a much cleaner earth for us and the generations to come.

Education is one of the topics that we should be most concerned about, because it determines the preparation of the future workers and leaders of the country. According to a report by the National Commission on Excellence in Education called Nation at Risk, the state of education in the U.S. is devastating. President Bush wanted to be the education president and make American students number one in Math and Science by the year 2000, but so far he has done nothing.

The Republican government has failed to act in regard to our health care problems. Consequently, millions of Americans can not afford health insurance. Therefore, many are just not going seeking medical attention when they are in need.

The country has serious social and racial problems that the administration has not addressed and as a result, events such as the Los Angeles riots occurred and might continue to happen. They are the expression of a sector of the population that have been neglected by their government. Another expression of social dissatisfaction is the Ross Perot phenomenon, where individuals turned to a man who has no political experience as a desperate effort to solve America's problems.

The only area where the Republicans are praising themselves is foreign affairs. They want to make us believe that everything is fine, because the cold war is over. This is not true. For years President Bush was dedicated to solving the world's problems, but he forgot the people at home. Furthermore, we must remember that during the 1980's billions of dollars were spent in weapons; in other words non-productive spending. We have nuclear arms that could destroy the Earth several times. This makes no sense. I think that President Bush should be the proper creditor for his accomplishments in the international arena, but also, we must not overemphasize his achievements. For example, the collapse of the Soviet Union was not a consequence of his stand against communism. It occurred, because their system failed and also because of the vision of Michael Gorbachev and his Perestroika and Glasnost.

In short, the Republicans have failed, so let's give a chance to a team with new ideas. Let's vote for Bill Clinton and Al Gore.

We need more people like Ms. Iron Heel

In the September 17 issue of The Montclarion, Christina Tischio wrote about the stupidity of prejudice. Her piece was both timely and accurate.

At a time in our country when people can not afford good health care, find jobs or have adequate housing, to let issues such as homophobia, racism and sexism dictate our actions proves how backwards the good U.S. of A. can be. This country will never be able to solve its primary problems as long as non-issues are allowed to be at the forefront of our decision making.

As a white male, I haven't experienced racism or sexism first hand. Homophobia is another issue. I could take the time to explain why gays or lesbians are not all of those horrible things a lot of people think we are and why we deserve the same rights as everyone else in this country. But, like Ms. Tischio, I really don't care what people think. I don't have enough time to explain to people why their prejudgments are irrelevant to me. I'm here simply to live my life and that is all I have time to do.

If more people had the wisdom to think for themselves like Christina Tischio does, we would all be better off.

Give us a break, Tim

I just finished reading Tim Lawton's column in the September 11 issue of The Montclarion and I have one thing to say, Tim, dear, do we live in the same world?

Although Mr. Lawton does raise some interesting issues, his portrayal of men as pathetic victims of women's sexuality is not only ridiculous, it's also amusing.

Mr. Lawton, did it ever occur to you that those bikini clad asses, being shoved in your face on the television nightly, are there because advertising executives and television directors, a predominantly male lot, put them there? And why did they put them there? Because an oversexed male population that has trouble dealing with women as anything other than sex objects wants them there. Men had these longings and desires long before the onslaught of the MTV generation. And let's give men some credit, too. If a particular man can think of only sex and refuses to commit until he's 30, it's obviously his own mental and emotional maturity level that's to blame. For I know many men who are decent and committed who have the same television you and I do. It is as insulting to say men are driven solely by their glands as it is to place full blame for our sexually promiscuous society on "those bikini clad women."

Lastly, regarding Mr. Lawton's feelings on abortion, since he will never know what it is like to be young, pregnant and terrified of the prospect of bringing a new life into this crazy world all by himself, he really shouldn't be so quick to judge. See, men have always had the option of saying "I don't want this for myself," but then how can we really hold them accountable? After all, they were merely possessed by the bikinis.

We'd rather not ask...

Upon arriving at MSC for the Fall Semester, 1987, "to lecture a bit," one of my first impressions of the college was an unsightly "run" of graffiti appearing on the east wall of Freeman Hall. As of the writing of this letter, yes, you may have guessed, the graffiti is as fresh as it was more than five years ago. Also, there is a trash receptacle located in the basement of College Hall, which if I am not mistaken, presently houses the office of the President of the college. The wording on this receptacle reads: "Property of MSC, College Hall," sic!

We as members of the college community hear and read so much these days as concerns on-going "assessments," "evaluation," "proposals," and "studies." Should we all ask ourselves the question: Are we assessing, evaluating, proposing, studying, and, of course, "thinking critically," about possible solutions to simply observed problems? Problems that left unsolved detract from campus "quality of life" and simultaneously, undermine the basic reason for our collective existence? Or should we not ask the question?

Trees, furniture and earth in The Art Gallery

The Life Hall art gallery presents "Abstractions in Sculpture and Drawing" which displays the work of Tom Aprile and Rolando Castellon.

New Yorker Tom Aprile

combines furniture parts and tree branches in his work.

A common aspect of his work includes flowing and rhythmic line which is also displayed in his seven pastel drawings that are also on exhibit.

Rolando Castellon displays a different kind of abstraction by utilizing a combination of objects which include paper, thread, paint and earth. He combines this materials by using methods such as weaving and folding.

The work of these artists will be on display until October 16 in Life Hall room 135.

American Indian Pow-Wow

by Sandi Cammilleri

As the nights grow colder and autumn winds herald the start of the harvest season, the Great Events '92 season of the SFPA of Montclair State heralded a harvest-like ceremony of its own!

On Sunday, September 27, 1992, American Indian Dance Theater opened the season with a regalia of American Indian performers. Arrayed in rich traditional costumes, the company composed of dancers, musicians, and singers from tribes of the Dakotas, Southwest, Canada, and the Great Plains, brought together a cultural legacy.

The costumes, consisting of authentic ceremonial headwear and dress, were striking. Each performer wore genuine attire which he/she made or acquired from a tribal member. The intricate beadwork and featherwork were an exquisite reflection of the fine craftsmanship which is still practiced among the American Indians today. The costumes were made of leather, beads, natural fabric, animal feathers, and fur. Each costume was an original, adorned with symbolic animal designs such as the eagle. The patterns and colors of the costumes provided a vibrant visual aesthetic to the production.

The dances were all customary expressions of the social and spiritual beliefs of the various American Indian subcultures. While each dance was as diverse as the costumes of the company, there was an apparent synergy which bound the production and gave it a rhythmic flow!

Northwest Coast Suite: A new addition to the American Indian Dance Theatre repertoire.

Two of the most outstanding numbers presented were the "Hoop Dance," and the "Fancy Dance." In the "Hoop Dance," a male dancer garbed in full attire including headwear, manipulated several red hoops. As he moved, he used both his body and the hoops to create such shapes as a flower, a butterfly and an eagle. The "Fancy Dance" consisted of unique fancy footwork! In this number, several dancers competed with each other as they challenged one another in a display of spins, stamina, and physical prowess.

The music, primarily made up of drum beats and vocal chants, was fascinating in and of itself. Very often, music and dance merged into one synonymous expression!

In an interview, one company member, Lloyd Yellowbird from the Plains Cree Nation, commented about his relationship to American Indian Dance Theater stating: "Our culture has always been exploited. We want people to realize we're not extinct."

As a whole, American Indian Dance Theater beautifully retold the rich heritage of a culture of American society that has been significantly overlooked.

Music department kicks off Fall season

CW Springfield

MSC's music department is underway in its Fall 1992 schedule of events, including numerous faculty/student recitals, concerts, and field trips. The next noon recital will be tomorrow, October 2, in the Student Center Ballrooms. Dr. Oscar Ravina will be conducting the orchestra, who will be accompanying Dr. Lisa DeLorenzo on Piano Concerto No. 2 in C minor. Ravina is also a violinist with the New York Philharmonic. Next Wednesday will feature faculty member jazz superstar Chris White with Peggy Schecter and John Girt, also faculty members, in one of the many jazz concerts offered by the music department. You'll be seeing mostly just faculty playing noon recitals in the upcoming month to give their students a standard for performance requirements.

The MSC Concert Band, conducted by Don Butterfield, is heavily rehearsing for their December concert...A field trip is being planned to the Metropolitan Opera House, but unfortunately, the trip is only available to music majors.

Don't forget to mark your calendars for these events:

Puly Toro and Andrew Schulman, November 11th,

The flute choir, November 18th

Opera Workshop recital, November 20th

All recitals start at noon, unless otherwise posted. And finally, the Madrigals performing their annual Christmas concert (no date has been posted yet), and a production of King David is in the works for the Spring of 1992.

Welcome, dear readers, to this very special edition of PROPHET BIGG. This week, we break from our usual bill of fare so that I, the Prophet, can relate to you my recent journey into the past.

It's not often that a person is able to meet one of his or her heroes. This past Sunday, I had the unique opportunity to spend a day with one of mine, George McFarland. He was born in 1928 and started making motion pictures for Hal Roach when he was only three. It was around this time when he was given his more well known nickname, Spanky.

So, what is Spanky McFarland like today at age 64? Well, simply, he knows what he knows, wishes the country was a little more like it was when he was a kid, thinks Bob Newhart is a lot like Jack Benny and is probably the funniest man in America, considers himself a won ton soup connoisseur and wants to know why egg fu yung is disappearing from Chinese restaurants. Whew! Read on. . .

PROPHET• How did you get involved with Hal Roach and the "Our Gang" pictures?

SPANKY• Well, I was born in Dallas and in picture of me in to Hal Roach, I guess cause she thought I was cute. Hal Roach seemed to like what he saw and got a hold of my parents and had them bring me out (to Hollywood) for a screen test and I got lucky. There's nothing more to it then that.

P• And you stayed on for, what 5 ye. . .

S• Thirteen years.

P• Thirteen years? Wow!

S• Yessir.

P• We hear a lot about child stars of the 50's, 60's and 70's and about the problems they had or are having as a result of being a child star. Were there any problems that you encountered as a result of being a child star?

S• Well, you have to understand. I was a child star at a totally different time. I grew up in an America where mothers and fathers corrected their kids, told them the difference between right and wrong and raised them to have a goal in life; to say "Yes ma'am" and "No sir", "Excuse me" and "Thank You". Somewhere along the line the people stopped doing that and as a result we have a country, right know, that's just about in the bucket.

P• So your not to happy with the way things are turning out. . .

S• You don't have enough tape to quote my dissatisfaction. (Laughter.) But to answer your other question, I didn't have any problems because of those reasons. My father raised me with tough love and didn't give a damn whether I was a movie star or not. I mean if I stepped out of line or did something I wasn't supposed to, I got punished for it and he used corporal punishment. I had many a belt across my butt and if you don't think so, look at me sideways cause it's still swollen. (Laughter.) I grew up loving my father. I still do. I think I grew up to be a pretty good man. I never had any problems. I know who I am even though I've been Spanky and George. They're both me. . . I believe you are the master of your own destiny. What goes around comes around. You reap what you sow. You get what you give out. You go through life taking and there are some people who don't feel like they have to give anything back. I have raised my children this same way, They both grew up to be straight arrows; never had any trouble with them. No

The topic of conversations

By Mark Loughlin

With all the press that Woody Allen has been getting lately, it seems that reviewing his film is redundant. There has been more press on this movie than Basic Instinct and Heaven's Gate combined. Tri-Star pictures, knowing an opportunity when it sees one, decided to release the film in an unheard of 800 theaters. For the normally low grossing Mr. Allen, this was a good sign.

The main point of interest is the numerous parallels between the real Woody Allen and this film. It's true that Allen in the film is also married to Mia Farrow in the film (in reality, they are not even married). He later becomes interested in a 20 year old writing student (Juliette Lewis) and leaves his wife. The characters are all a bunch of Manhattan neurotics, but then, what else is new? That's about where the similarities end. In the film, Allen and Farrow do not have kids of their own, but Mia's character has one from a previous marriage. In reality, Mia has a child from a previous marriage, one with Woody, and enough adopted children to remake the Wizard of Oz.

Husbands and Wives is more of an intense, philosophical character study than a plot oriented film. It tackles some very burning questions, like, are people meant to stay together forever, and is there such a thing as a perfect match? Where most movies of late are a nice little snack with a diverting story that you may remember the remainder of that night, Husbands and Wives is hearty, substantial brainfood that can be the basis for some real intelligent discussion. That, of course, depends on your company.

My grandmother used to tell me, "The first time, something's funny. The second, it's silly. The third time is stupid." This especially holds true for the whole Dan Quayle/Murphy Brown fiasco. The potato (minus the 'e') schtick got old real quick, and right behind it comes Mr. Family Values vs. The Unwed Mother.

Okay, I can see why someone might say something. Kids should have a father (or father figure) as well as a mother. I don't dispute that, and neither does 99.44 per cent of the population. I think everyone would love the Norman Rockwellian family image- Mom, Dad, 2.5 kids, the dog, a nice white house with a picket fence in Suburbia U.S.A. However, it's time for a reality check. This is the '90s. Like the bumper sticker reads, shit happens. Dad could be a drunken schmecklehead and might have left while Junior was a wee bairn. Mom could be a drug addict, or just came from a bad family that has no hope of getting out of the gutter. Or, as Pat Buchanan would like us to think, the decline of America could be attributed to Mom getting (God forbid, in this suckey economy) a job.

First of all, television like Murphy Brown is supposed to be entertainment, not a public forum for Mr. Quayle's opinions. Then again, All In The Family got the same criticism because the Bunkers supposedly mirrored America. Wrong. Murphy Brown is a decent show, but I wouldn't point at it, saying "See? That's what I mean?" Personally, I think Roseanne mirrors the average middle class family more than any show on television nowadays (and I really don't like Roseanne Arnold). However, Roseanne didn't get put under the spotlight anywhere near as much as Murphy Brown did.

The whole issue has been beaten into a warm geletainous mass that no one really gives a flying fig about, yet the media keeps bringing it up (partly because Danny-boy does). Give it a rest. Please.

On another note, tabloid journalism strikes again. This time, it almost caused Amy Fisher, the alleged Lolita to Joey Buttafuoco, to attempt suicide. I agree, it was a little low to splatter the issue on nationwide TV right from Hard Copy, but it was news, and I believe it should have been told. As a certain magazine editor once said, "If they screw up, BANG! On the front page it goes." It seems like an interesting gray area, where you know it was important to show it, but it seems kind of underhanded to do it. Oh, well.

IRONICALLY, THE TIME TO START SAVING FOR RETIREMENT IS WHEN IT LOOKS LIKE YOU CAN LEAST AFFORD IT.

Can't afford to save for retirement? The truth is, you can't afford not to. Not when you realize that your retirement can last 20 to 30 years or more. You'll want to live at least as comfortably then as you do now. And that takes planning.

By starting to save now, you can take advantage of tax-deferral and give your money time to compound and grow. Consider this: set aside just $100 each month beginning at age 30 and you can accumulate over $192,539* by the time you reach age 65. But wait ten years and you'll have to budget $227 each month to reach the same goal.

dope. No discourtesy, no nothing. But as far as these other child stars, I can understand where abuse would affect somebody, but most of these kids didn't have child abuse. The only abuse their parents heaped on them was not teaching them right from wrong or letting them run helter-skelter, giving them more money than they could spend and not instilling any responsibility in them. That's the real abuse.

P• For a very long time.

S• And we learned how to work with people that maybe you didn't particularly like, but found some redeeming value in them that would make it bearable for you to work with him day in and day out. Otherwise, you were gonna be unhappy, they were gonna be unhappy and everyone around you would be unhappy. I learned early in life to get along with people. You don't have to fall in love with 'um, but you get along with 'um for the period of time you have to. When that's over you don't. You go your own way and they go theirs. . . Life is very simple. The only social graces that any person needs in this country they can learn in kindergarden.

P• So you've read All I needed to learn, I learned in kindergarden by Robert Fulgum.

S• I've been saying that a long time before Robert ever wrote it. (Laughter.)

P• How did you leave show business? Was it your choice to leave or. . .

S• Absolutely.

P• You decided "I've got to go. . ."

S• I was sixteen years old and no longer under contract to anybody and I was tired of making movies. I told my father "I'm not gonna make any more movies" and I didn't.

P• And your father approved?

S• No. He didn't like it.

P• He wanted you to go on then.

S• Well, he thought I still had a career out there and I didn't care whether I had one or not. I wanted another life. I was sixteen years old and had been working for thirteen of those. I wanted a break.

P• Do you enjoy the fandom you still receive?

S• Sure. It's an honor to me that people remember something I did a hundred years ago. (Laughter.) It's like I told you earlier, this is what I give back.

P• You seem very concerned about what is going on in the country. . .

S• I am. I have a granddaughter that's seven years old who's gonna grow up and not have a shot at the American dream like I had.

P• Do you have a prediction for the White House or does it really not matter. . .

S• Of course it matters! This is probably the single most important election in fifty years. Maybe a hundred. The system needs cleansing; needs updating. The founding fathers, in my opinion, did not intend for some senator to go in when he was 25 and still be there when he was 75!

P• What about the White House?

S• Whoever goes in there is gonna have to care about reducing the deficit; They're gonna have to care about operating on a balanced budget and stop this insane spending. . . I wish we could set the election back another year and make these candidates go to some town meetings twice a month. And to go there and listen, not to talk.

P• You are/were a figure in the entertainment industry, and we all know that despite what the vice-president may say, the industry has some bearing on how are culture is. What do you think?

S• Of course. Hollywood, unusual as it may be, is an art form; an ongoing, changing art form. And art has its effect on society. . . Hollywood is very liberal. Always has been, probably always will be. But I don't agree with a majority of things that Hollywood says, does or puts out in motion pictures but it does have effects on American people. Life gets tedious. Don't it? Remember that song?

P• What song?

S• "Life gets tedious, don't it?"

P• I don't think so.

S• That goes back quite a few years though. I don't know why I thought you'd be familiar with it. You're too young.

P• I'm not all that young ya know.

S• You're not 40!

P• I'm almost 24.

S• Well, excuse me. (Pause.) I've got shorts that are 24!! (Laughter)

Volleyball continues improvement but still seeks first victory

by Nicole Festa

The winless MSC Volleyball team was just narrowly defeated by Marywood in a squeaker of a volleyball match last week. After losing the first game by a close margin of 15-13, the Lady Red

Hawks tried to rebound in the second game. Although they forced Marywood to score an extra point (for the two point mandatory margin), they fell short once again by the score of 16-14. Finally, they lost the third game by another tight score of 15-12.

This might have been marked a loss in the books, but the volleyball team could consider it a possible plus. They showed tremendous improvement from their last outings, and proved that they are capable contenders.

The Red Hawks will finally end their seven game homestand with contests against Bloomfield College on Thursday, Oct. 1 at 7 p.m., and NYU on Saturday, October 3 at 12 p.m.

MSC's Davis and Culver know all about meaning of "pride"

by Michael Frasco

Don't ask Keith Davis if he was intimidated last week when the junior traveled up to Ithaca College to face the defending Division III national football champs.

At best, you would receive a shrug, or a smirk to your questions. Intimidation to those two does not come in the form of opposing football players or teams. In fact, both football players are rarely intimidated by anything anymore, simply because their respective childhoods were filled with enough hard times for a lifetime.

Davis, the starting cornerback for the Montclair State College football team, and Culver, the starting fullback, both grew up in Newark, New Jersey, and to them, that was intimidating enough.

"I grew up in the worst section of town, in the South Ward section," said Davis, and All-ECAC selection at cornerback last year as a sophomore. "I was surrounded by violence and car theft, and drugs were everywhere. I laugh when someone asks if I was ever scared on the football field. Those people don't know what scared is."

That is why, this coming Saturday on October 3rd, Davis and Culver will feel that there is a bit more at stake than just winning when each participate in the 14th Annual Pride Bowl at Montclair State's Sprague Field. The Pride

MSC defensive star Keith Davis

Bowl is a football game played every year in which the proceeds from ticket sales and private donations go directly to an organization called Project Pride (see back page).

Culver also remembers growing up in Newark. "It was a tough situation," he commented. "You were never 100 percent comfortable. That is why I'm so glad to play in this game. It's giving chances to kids in Newark who normally wouldn't have any. Kids need programs like Project Pride that offer to divert their attention to good things."

Davis agrees. "I saw what happened to some of my friends, what happened to the people I grew up with, and if I can do anything to help today's kids, like playing in this game, I'll play twelve Pride Bowls tomorrow."

The game, run for the last 11 years by Star Ledger columnist Jerry Izenberg, used to be played in what was the beautiful City Stadium in Newark. But neglect and poor maintenance caused the Newark Board of Education to condemn the grandstands in the stadium, forcing Project Pride to find another place to play. That turned out to be a difficult task, since City Stadium had a capacity of 14,000, and the game was on the verge of selling out every year.

However, all was saved that year (1990) thanks to Irvington High School, when its board of education donated its own football field for the game, which was contested by MSC and Wagner College. Last year, Pride Bowl officials got together with athletic administrators at Montclair for a bigger stadium and a better solution,

MSC fullback John Culver and shortly after, for the first time in its history, the Pride Bowl was going to be played on the campus of one of the participants. Sprague Field, capacity 7,000, became the site of Pride Bowl 13, and even though there was a torrential downpour throughout most of the game, over 4,500 people showed up and turned what looked like a disaster evening into a success.

This season, weather permitting, the game may draw over 8,000 fans at standing room only, which would be a new Montclair State attendance record.

Head coach Rick Giancola, also an old resident of Newark, is coaching in his sixth Pride Bowl and fourth in the last four years. He attributes the success of the organization, and the game, to the people, and volunteers involved.

"Pride Bowl is people," said the coach. "It is people joining efforts to help those less fortunate, to give kids special opportunities. Every year, I am proud to be a part of this game, and this organization."

Davis and Culver are proud as well. "Helping those kids is the best feeling in the world," said Culver. Davis, sitting next to him and smiling, nodded his head in agreement.

"Everybody wins," he said. "The players, the fans, and eighteen thousand kids from my hometown. No better deal than that."

Thanking "the hick from French Lick" for the memories

by Mark Alan Belnay

For anyone who has ever been a fan of the game of basketball, the upcoming season will hold a different look. No longer will there be the classic Celtic-Laker matchups of the 1980's with Bird and Magic leading their respective teams into battle. First the world of sports lost Magic Johnson to the HIV-virus and this past summer saw the final chapter in the legendary career of Larry Bird. Johnson and Bird led the U.S. Olympic Team into Barcelona and emerged with the gold medal. There could be no more fitting finale for these two great players than to play side by side in their final game together. Although there is still doubt as to Johnson's status for the upcoming season, the Celtics say Bird says he is retired. No ifs, ands, or buts about it.

For Bird, it began at Indiana State University, where he led the Sycamores to the NCAA Final against Magic Johnson and the Michigan State Spartans. It was the first of their legendary battles and was perhaps their greatest. Both players were remarkable, with Michigan State defeating the Sycamores for the 1979 title. Bird became the sixth pick in the draft by the Boston Celtics, a once proud organization that had fallen on hard times in recent years. Things changed however, as Larry Bird began what was to become one of the greatest careers in basketball. He led the Celtics to a 61 and 21 record and an Atlantic Division crown his first year in Boston and was named Rookie of the Year.

Bird's first championship came in 1981 as he and the Celtics defeated the Houston Rockets in six games to gain the trophy. Then came Red Auerbach's acquisition of Robert Parish and Kevin McHale from the Golden State Warriors. The three would form perhaps the greatest front line in NBA history and would go on to gain another two championships together. For Bird there was no greater accomplishment than winning a championship for the Celtics and their fans. At a press conference after the team's victory in 1981, Bird responded to the crowd's cheers that he wouldn't want to be anywhere else except his home town of French Lick, Indiana. That was Bird.

At the peak of his game in the mid-1980's, Bird won three consecutive Most Valuable Player awards and led the Celtics to championships in 1984 and 1986. He was perhaps the hardest working player in basketball. Bird could be found on the parquet floor hours before the rest of the players entered the Garden, practicing three-pointers and his patented left-handed shot. It was practice that made him one of the greatest of all-time and his very existence on the court made those around him that much better. In 1986 the Celtics acquired an aging and ailing Bill Walton in the off-season and went on to become one of the greatest teams in NBA history. As a finale to the '86 season, the Celtics defeated the Houston Rockets in the championship, with Bird winning the MVP of the Championship Series.

The memories of Larry Bird are too numerous to count but who could forget his steal of Isiah Thomas' inbound pass in the '87 Eastern Conference Championships, his incredible 50 point performance against the Trailblazers in his second game back from the disabled list last season, or the myriad of game-winning shots that he has been responsible for in the waning moments of games over the years. He was never caught up in the glitter of the times and his work ethic and incredible competitive attitude are legendary around the league. The Lakers' Michael Cooper, who battled with Bird in the Laker-Celtic championship battles of the 1980's, was fond of saying that Bird would call shots when being defended. "You'd hear him say face and he'd launch a three-pointer that was all net. Then you'd walk past him on the way back down the court and he'd apologize with this sarcastic look on his face." Perhaps the fondest memory I have of Larry Bird occurred prior to a Celtic-Net game in 1984. I had ventured onto the court prior to the game to get a few autographs and Bird was headed towards the locker rooms at the far end of the court. I ran across the court, as though my life depended on it, and called his name. I ended up standing next to my childhood hero as he signed my program and asked me if I was a Celtic fan. I could only answer in mumbles, but he shook my hand and said his first basket would be a three-pointer. Then he was gone. As I sat next to my father, the Celtics were setting up their offense and then he kept his promise. He made a three-pointer from the top of the circle and just trotted back down the court with his teammates. No other experience I've ever had watching a game has compared with the moment that shot passed through the net and into the hands of the official. I don't know about anyone else, but I'm going to have a difficult time tuning in a game with the Celtics playing and not seeing number 33 on the court...

Cross country looks for big things from All-Americans

by Mark Alan Belnay

This past week the MSC cross country team kicked off its season at the Monmouth Invationals with both the men's and women's teams showing the talent needed to be successful in the upcoming season. The men's team is led by All-Americans Wayne Dennis, a junior transfer from Essex Community College, and first-year runner Ernest Johnson, an All-American in both Indoor and Outdoor Track and Field this past year. The women are led by the combination of All-Americans Sherine Titus, Carla Roberts, and Sharon Lindo, all of whom gained their All-American status in Track and Field last year.

Dennis and Johnson are joined by junior transfer Hector Rivera, who is coming off a serious knee injury to run cross country for the first time, senior John Brennan of JFK Memorial High School who has recuperated from a knee problem, as well as freshmen Jenabu Williams of Clifford Scott High School and Barry Camhi of Cedar Ridge. This team has the experience and talent to reach any goals they may set for themselves and as long as everyone stays healthy this could be a season of impressive performances for many members of the team.

In addition to the three track and field All-Americans, Titus, Lindo, and Roberts, the women's team boasts some sparkling new talent in freshmen Kara Ramborger of Bridgeton High School, East Orange High's Rhonda Westbrook, and the team's sixth runner Maria Tchinchinian out of Dover High School. Despite finishing with an incomplete this past week at the Monmouth Invationals, the team shows promise. Head coach John Blanton who is looking forward to an improved performance this week at the New Jersey College Championships says, "Hopefully all butterflies were left on the track this past week."

With an improved performance from the women and Brennan and Dennis improving upon their previous marks, as both did this past week at the Invationals by nearly four minutes in their 5-mile races, the MSC team should put up an impressive performance this week. The team's sole home meet is October 17 at the Red Hawk Invitational. Following that week the team is on the road for their remaining meets that include the Drew Invitational on the 24th, the CTC Championships on Halloween, and the NJAC Championships on the sixth of November.

The Pride Bowl: More than a football game

by Michael Frasco

After losses to Cortland State and Ithaca College in its first two contests, the Red Hawk football team is in need of a victory to keep its playoff hopes alive. MSC will get that chance against NJAC rival Ramapo College this Saturday night at Sprague Field at 7 p.m. The conference battle also marks the 14th annual Pride Bowl.

The Roadrunners will be seeking their first victory as well, after dropping a 7-0 decision to Kean this past weekend and falling to 0-3 in the process. And although this game is critical for each team, the fact that the two teams will convene, means the real winner will come off the field in the name of the kids from Project Pride.

The game is the sole fundraiser of this all-volunteer non-profit Project Pride Inc., which funds over 18 programs for 15,000 youths in the city of Newark in the areas of recreation, after-school tutoring for grammar school children and college scholarships for high school graduates.

Saturday's game will mark MSC's eighth appearance in this annual game, with the Red Hawks owning a 3-4 record.

Last year's contest saw Ramapo overcome a 17-7 deficit in the fourth quarter and pull out a 23-17 victory. The winning touchdown came in thrilling fashion, as Ramapo quarterback James Grant was forced out of the pocket and scrambling, when he found Brad McKinney over the middle for what turned out to be an 88-yard touchdown pass with just 1:06 to play.

A standing-room only crowd is expected by Pride Bowl officials to watch what has become one of the most heated football rivalries in the NJAC. But still, most in attendance will not realize the significance this game takes on for the youngsters.

MSC Director of Athletics, Greg Lockard said, "It's a wonderful game, we're pleased to be part of it because of the kids in Newark." He continued, "We have a better tradition in the contest than anybody else, so we've been good for the Pride Bowl and the Pride Bowl has been good for us."

Project Pride was the brainchild of Jerry Izenberg, Star-Ledger columnist and Pride President as a way to give something back to the youth of Newark, the city he grew up in.

MSC Assistant Director of Athletics, Ollie Gelston is one who can relate to Izenberg's roots regarding the inner city, as he was raised in Jersey City. He said, "Anyone that came out of the inner city who was in my generation, has great admiration for anyone trying to do something for the youth of the inner city."

Rick Giancola, MSC's head football coach, is also familiar with the inner city. Giancola is from the Ironbound section of Newark and he has seen the streets and what can happen without guidance. He offered this perspective on MSC's participation in the event. "It's nice to think that there are people who think that we can help in some fashion, to generate some monies to help fund the programs that go to the kids of Newark. So from that standpoint we're happy we can help."

Giancola also voiced his opinion on what he has had his team work on during MSC's off week, in preparation for the contest itself. He said, "Last week, the emphasis was, let's get back to the fundamentals and let's try to regroup and correct some of those mistakes."

One of the central reasons for MSC's 0-2 record is due to the team's overall lack of game experience. "Because of our youth, we may have tried to do too many things in terms of X's and O's, and maybe our inexperience is not ready to handle that yet," Giancola said.

Looking ahead to this week's contest, MSC and Giancola will need very little motivation, as the painful memory from last year's loss is still strong. He said, "The sting of last year and how last year's game ended is still there."

A win Saturday for MSC, would certainly relieve much of the sting from last season, and more importantly, it would also alleviate much of the pain inflicted on this year's winless campaign so far.

Men's soccer wins pair behind Neubart

by Craig Berosh

The Red Hawks offensive attack was as relentless as the rain Friday night at soggy Sprague Field. The men's soccer team poured on Rutgers Camden 6-2, completing a perfect 2-0 week of play.

After a Pioneers' goal cut the MSC lead to 2-1 in the second half, Fernando Barboto embarrassed a Pioneers defender with a brilliant move and precisely placed a cross on the head of Erik Neubart. Neubart beat Rutgers Camden's goalie for his fifth goal, at about the time it started to pour on the visitors.

MSC added three more goals. Carlos Hunze tallied twice, both assisted by Neubart. Freshman forward Jim LaGarde also scored.

The first half was controlled by the skill of MSC midfielders Alex Zapata and Barboto. "They are both creative defensive players and they organize an attack," said head coach Rob Chesney.

The Red Hawks outshot the Pioneers 34-8. Neubart scored the game's first goal and Dennis Mancero headed in his first of the year for a 2-0 MSC lead at halftime.

Montclair visited Eastern Connecticut on Sept. 24 in a non-conference matchup that would take overtime to decide. A 2-2 tie was broken in the 102nd minute when MSC forward Guillermo Siles scored the game winner, his fourth goal of the season, off a pass from Barboto. Neubart forced the game into overtime by scoring with only two minutes left in regulation. MSC, who out-shot the Warriors 29-13, struck first on Mario Bartelli's second goal of the year.

MSC sophomore forward Erik Neubart was named NJAC Co-Player of the week for his efforts in two men's soccer victories last week. Neubart, a Livingston native, scored three times and added three assists to help the Red Hawks win over E. Conn. and Rutgers Camden. Neubart currently leads the team in scoring and is fourth in the NJAC with five goals and five assists. "Erik has done a lot of hard work. His relentless effort makes him very dangerous. He creates opportunities for himself by always working and giving 110 percent," said head coach Rob Chesney.

The Red Hawks take on Vassar College (N.Y.) tomorrow night at Sprague Field at 8 p.m. The non-conference game matches the number four team in the Eastern Region, Vassar, against the sixth ranked Red Hawks. The top six teams in the region make post-season play, so make plans to catch the Red Hawks in what should be an excellent game.

Does Walker's Road to Record Run Through Roadrunners?

There is a lot at stake this Saturday night during the 14th Annual Pride Bowl, and one of them actually has to do with football. John Walker, MSC's All-American candidate at tailback, needs just 84 yards to become the all-time leading rusher in MSC history, surpassing Leroy Horn who racked up 2,942 yards. Walker currently has 2,858 yards on a record 594 carries.

This Saturday, he should become the only back in MSC history to carry the ball over 600 times.

Interestingly enough, however, is that Walker has not done well traditionally against Ramapo in three career games. Last year, as a junior, he carried the ball 24 times for 52 yards. As a sophomore, at Ramapo, he gained just 50 yards on 25 carries. And as a freshman, he got in late and carried the ball three times for seven yards. That equals 54 carries for 109 yards, or just over two yards an attempt. Walker is currently adding on to his record of all-purpose yardage every time he touched the ball. Entering Saturday, the senior has 3,883 all-purpose yards, which includes 75 career receptions.

Women's tennis moves to 5-2 with fourth straight win

by Karen Plumstead

The MSC Women's Tennis team has become unbeatable. The Red Hawks continued their winning streak this week with their fourth win in a row, upping their record to an impressive 5-2. The Red Hawks outstanding play on the courts has even been a surprise to head coach Brian McLaughlin. "I'm virtually speechless," he said.

The most recent victory was 5-4 over Hunter College on Monday, Sept. 28. The 5-4 victory is no stranger to MSC. The team has won its last three matches by that score. The fate of the Hunter match lay in the hands of the third doubles team of sophomore Tara Spor and senior Jen Dubrowski. Their outstanding play put them over the edge to victory. Also, freshman Catherine Grosvenor staged a comeback in the second set, winning 7-5, after being down 5-2. Without her determination, the MSC women would have been defeated.

The tight contest also proved victorious over Upsala on Thursday, Sept. 24, 6-3. Freshman Traci Syzmanski, proved to be Montclair's most valuable player for the day when she defeated both opponents in her singles match and then teamed with fellow freshman Alison Vort to win a doubles match.

Upcoming events include the New Jersey State Tournament in Trenton on Oct. 2-3. The Red Hawks will compete against all New Jersey state schools. The team will be on the road with Kutztown University on Oct. 6 and with Rowan College on Oct. 10.
